PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Asia Foundation Development Fellows program provides highly qualified, young professionals from Asia with an unparalleled opportunity to strengthen their leadership skills and gain in-depth knowledge of Asia's critical development challenges. The year-long professional advancement program is designed to be a multifaceted experience, involving intensive learning modules – short courses, conferences and study tours in Asia and the U.S. – to enhance leadership skills, Asian development knowledge, professional networks, and international exposure.

The Asia Foundation Development Fellows program is not a full-time fellowship. Fellows will typically remain in their occupations throughout the fellowship year while participating in the program modules. The program does require participants travel for two, 2-week modules in-person. The program is fully funded at no cost to the participants.

The 2023 program is comprised of the following components:

Spring 2023: Leadership Training Program and Study Tour [Laos, February 12-23, 2023]

The Leadership Training Program and Study Tour presents a series of highly interactive leadership training modules with executive coaches; site visits with leading development practitioners and thinkers, recognized policy leaders, and local innovators; short assignments; and sessions focused on self-care and wellness for leaders. With the larger objective of enhancing leadership skills and potential, the leadership training modules focus on strategic thinking and decision-making, working with participants on developing critical perspectives, solving complicated problems, managing change, and introducing innovative approaches in leadership and management. Site visits will allow fellows to explore approaches that deliver positive impact and advance development knowledge. In previous years, the program has taken place in the Philippines, Nepal, Mongolia, Vietnam, Sri Lanka, Indonesia, Singapore and Korea where local needs and challenges served as a contextual backdrop for exploring theories of change and practice in international development.

Forum on Leadership for Asia's Future [February 24-26, 2023. Location TBA]

The biennial Forum on Leadership for Asia's Future: At the Frontlines of Change presents an invaluable opportunity to gather alumni of the nine current and former cohorts of Asia Foundation Development Fellows and other young and inspirational changemakers from across Asia to discuss shared development challenges, build and deepen networks of support, promote knowledge sharing, recognize achievements, and highlight creative avenues for innovation and collaboration. The first Forum was held in Singapore in April of 2018.

Fall 2023: Leadership Dialogue and Exchange Program

[United States, October 1-14, 2023]

The fall Leadership Dialogue and Exchange Program, providing important opportunities to extend personal bonds with their cohort, as well as building new international perspectives and networks of support and inspiration. Over this two-week period, the Fellows will take part in a comprehensive series of sessions, policy discussions, and unique learning and leadership development opportunities organized in and around San Francisco, Washington, D.C. and another small city across the U.S.

Professional Development Award

An award of up to US$5,000 will be made available to each of the selected Fellows. This cash award will allow each Fellow the opportunity to design individualized plans to further their leadership skills and relevant professional experience in areas of particular importance to their career growth. ONLINE APPLICATION

Applications for the Asia Foundation Development Fellows program are to be completed online through the WizeHive application system. The system will require you to set up an account so you can save and resume your progress. Letters of reference will also be handled through this online platform and can be completed after you submit your online forms. All components of the application are due at the application deadline.

Personal Information

You will be asked to provide personal information such as contact details and your educational and professional background. You will also be asked about your language ability (NOTE: this program does not require standardized exam scores such as TOEFL).

Written Submission

The online application will include essay fields. Each candidate must address the following three prompts:

1. One-paragraph Biography: *written in the third-person, summarize your professional background, experience, expertise, and accomplishments. Please note that this biography may be used in publications or external announcements that provide information on our Fellows. (max 150 words) *for examples, see: <https://asiafoundation.org/what-we-do/asia-foundation-development-fellows/#ourfellows>
2. Question #1: Please make your case as to why this Fellowship program is right for you. Given the stated mission of this Fellowship, selection criteria, and program offerings: what should we know about you and your work, how are you hoping to grow as a leader, and how will this program assist your professional goals and aspirations? (max 300 words)
3. Question #2: In social impact work, there is always a gap between knowledge and practice. Sometimes it seems there is a lot of talking and little action. Sometimes, problems can remain unsolved even when we have the right answer. Provide a perspective or tell a story—based on your personal experience, work interests, and on-going activities—that relates to these themes. (max 300 words)

Supplementary Materials

You will be required to upload an electronic version of your Resume or CV (3 pages max). You may also upload a scanned copy as long as it fits the appropriate file formats.

Video Submission

As the Asia Foundation Development Fellows program recognizes the importance of media and the role of technology, applicants are required to create a short, 2-3 minute video. Using a webcam, cell phone or video camera, please record yourself presenting your response to the prompt in the application.

Prompt: Briefly introduce yourself and summarize your professional background, then discuss: what does the word “inequality” mean to you. This is no need to consult dictionaries or academic texts - this is an a very open ended question with no “right” answer and we want to hear your personal perspective on the topic.

You can either (1) upload your video directly to the application system (max size: 1GB) or (2) you may use a video hosting website such as YouTube, Vimeo, Google Drive or DropBox. If you elect this option, title your video with your full name and adjust your privacy settings to make sure only those with the URL are able to view your video. Every hosted video has a URL or web address which you can copy and paste. If you wish to password protect your video, please use the following password: fellows2023

IMPORTANT:

- Remember that your video presentation should show your communication skills: the ability to capture and hold an audience’s attention, and ability to speak with clarity, brevity and structure.
- A strong video takes time and practice, so please plan to devote plenty of time into its preparation.
- Do not waste time on aesthetics such as excessive editing, visual effects, music or other elaborate elements, as they will not factor into the evaluation. Your video should primarily feature you and your ideas.
- Please try to keep the duration under 4 minutes.
- Make sure the size of your video file is not too large (under 1GB). When recording, check your video quality settings. Remember, higher quality video and sound does not necessarily strengthen your application.
- If you are having difficulty due to lack of reliable internet, try first uploading your submission from a different computer or try another location with stronger connection such as an internet café. If you are continuing to experience problems or have other technical difficulties, please contact Asia Foundation staff.

LETTERS OF REFERENCE

The Asia Foundation Development Fellows program requires two (2) letters of recommendation from each applicant. Please use online application system to manage and check the status of your recommendations. References will be contacted directly via the application system and will receive instructions on how to submit your recommendation through a submission portal. Do not have them submit letters as email attachments.

The “Letter of Recommendation” function will appear on the main menu of the application form once you have filled out your profile and proceeded to the main application page.

When you have completed every section of the submission, the “Submit” button will turn green. This indicates that you can now fully submit your application. Once you click “Submit” the application will no longer be editable.

If additional forms become available to view or fill out, they will appear at the top of this page. Previously submitted information will be viewable for your reference.

The screenshot shows a web interface for the application system. At the top, there is a section titled "Application" with a "Submit" button. Below this, there are two items listed: "Applications" and "Letter of Recommendation". Each item has an "Open" button and the text "Action Required".

References should be able to comment on your professional abilities, thematic knowledge, and leadership qualities either within your field or your larger community. We reserve the right to contact your listed references for further information on your candidacy.

The recommendation system is applicant led, meaning it is the applicant's responsibility to ensure that recommendation notifications reach their references, and are completed before the application deadline. If your references do not receive their recommendation notifications, please have them contact Asia Foundation staff.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

PROGRAM AND ELIGIBILITY

How many Fellows are selected each year?

The next cohort of Asia Foundation Development Fellows will consist of 12 individuals.

Are there specific age requirements?

You must be under 40 years of age by January 1 of the designated Fellowship year. For example, for the 2023 Fellowship year, you must have been born after January 1, 1983.

I am just above the age cutoff. Could you relax the age limit?

Unfortunately, no exceptions can be made with respect to the age requirements.

Is there a degree requirement?

While most qualified candidates will have strong academic backgrounds – bachelors, masters and even PhDs in relevant areas – the program acknowledges that strong leadership potential, relevant professional experience, and thematic knowledge can be demonstrated without the presence of a formal degree. Therefore, at this time, there is no degree requirement for this program. Those who have completed an academic degree program are required to submit an unofficial copy of their transcripts verifying completion of their degree program.

Is there a minimum work experience requirement?

There is no minimum work experience requirement. However, successful candidates will show excellent track records of at least several years of professional experience and accomplishment in their own disciplines. We seek candidates who can demonstrate outstanding leadership potential and professional competencies, and much of this typically derives from experience in dynamic working environments.

How do I verify my eligibility with respect to the citizenship/nationality requirements?

In general, the program seeks Asian professionals who have a deep familiarity with their respective country or region. For this reason, only citizens or resident nationals of the listed countries and regions, where The Asia Foundation has programs, are eligible to apply. Applicants must be able to provide official documentation proving their citizenship or nationality, ideally in the form of a passport. While we do not require copies of these documents to be submitted during the online application, applicants should be prepared to provide such documentation upon being designated as a finalist during the selection process.

How do you define “resident national?”

A resident national is the equivalent in each Asian country of a "Permanent Resident" in the U.S. (or "Landed Resident" in some countries with a strong British influence). That is, the person is allowed to reside indefinitely within a country of which he or she is not a citizen. We do not have an exhaustive list of the types of documents needed to prove resident national status. Potential applicants therefore have a small amount of discretion as to whether or not documents in their possession will meet the abovementioned criteria. However, Asia Foundation staff will ultimately determine if the submitted documents are acceptable. Applicants should also note that simply meeting the nationality requirements does not necessarily constitute a strong application. Desirable candidates will have extensive histories in the listed countries and will be able to demonstrate a long-term commitment to working within their regional or country contexts.

Am I able to apply if I am currently living, working or studying outside my home country in Asia?

Yes. It is expected that some highly qualified candidates will be pursuing opportunities outside their home countries. Applicants currently living outside of Asia who hold citizenship or resident nationality from the accepted countries of this program are still eligible to apply.

Should I still apply even if I do not have a formal background in development?

Yes. The program welcomes candidates from diverse professional disciplines with demonstrable experience in issues involving Asian development and policy. While Fellows will typically be NGO and civil society leaders, government officials and policymakers, social entrepreneurs, journalists, environmentalists, and academics, we still encourage highly talented and dedicated individuals from other disciplines to apply.

How well do I have to know English for this program?

While the program does not have a formal English proficiency requirement (for example, TOEFL exam results), selected Fellows must have strong enough English language skills to participate in all program components. Much of the program and its content are highly interactive and international in nature. Exceptional languages skills are highly desirable, but they are not a prerequisite for this program.

What is the time commitment? Is this a full-time fellowship?

Participation in the program is not a full-time commitment. The main program components are 1-2 week learning modules which grants the Fellows the flexibility to remain in their current occupations throughout their fellowship year. The program's Professional Development Award also offers greater flexibility for Fellows to design their own custom educational component or project that fits in with their existing commitments.

What if I am accepted to the program but not able to attend?

We ask that you do not apply to this program unless you are absolutely certain you are able to attend the Asia and U.S. training modules and follow through on your Professional Development Award plan during the fellowship year. In the case of an emergency or unforeseeable circumstances that preclude your participation, you must notify staff as soon as possible.

If I applied previously and was not selected, can I apply again?

Yes, we encourage you to apply again.

Are current employees of The Asia Foundation eligible to apply?

The program is not open to current Foundation staff.

My passport is expired and currently being renewed, but it won't be ready until after the deadline. May I still apply?

Applicants may still apply if your passport is expired, but you must have a current valid passport by the start of the program, if selected.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Am I provided funding to participate in this program?

All program expenses are covered, including costs for coursework and programming, airfares and local transportation, lodging and meals, visa fees, and health and accident insurance. Fellows also receive a Professional Development Award of up to US$5,000 for their own personalized professional development plan.

Must I provide any proof or documentation of financial means?

Because all program expenses are covered, we do not require any proof of financial means.

Can this fellowship program help fund my current or future studies?

No. The Asia Foundation Development Fellows program is not a flexible scholarship fund for degree programs or participation in other major academic programs.

Does the fellowship provide income replacement?

The Asia Foundation does not provide any income replacement as Fellows are expected to stay in their current positions throughout their fellowship year.

Does this program support family members?

The program does not provide support for family members and family members may not accompany the Fellows during the Asia and U.S. components.

APPLICATION PROCESS

When do I apply?

The application period takes place in the last quarter of the year around August, September, or October.

May I send my application via global mail or fax?

We do not accept applications or letters of recommendation by global mail or fax. All application components must be submitted electronically.

Will I have to submit documentation of citizenship or nationality?

We do not require these documents during the application process itself, however you will be required to send copies of these documents to verify that you meet the nationality requirements should your application advance further in the selection process.

What are the selection procedures?

All applications are evaluated by Asia Foundation staff at the initial reviewing stages and will be narrowed down to a final selection pool. Thereafter, a selection committee of highly qualified and experienced experts will be charged with evaluating finalists and determining the Asia Foundation Development Fellows.

When are we notified of the final selection?

The final selection will be announced around the beginning of each year.

Do I have any responsibilities after the fellowship year?

All Development Fellows will become part of an active and engaged alumni network – through web and social media platforms, as well as substantive program intersections – that will encourage ongoing collaboration and the sharing of ideas, resources, and support throughout their professional careers.

My online application session has been disrupted. Did I lose all of my progress?

Please contact the Asia Foundation Development Fellows staff and they will be able to assist you in recovering your application information.

How are letters of recommendation submitted?

Under the WizeHive application system, you will designate your references when filling out your application. The program will contact your references automatically and guide them through procedures. DO NOT have referees email references to our Development Fellows email address.

How many references do I need and whom should I ask to write for me?

The application process requires two (2) letters of recommendation for each applicant. References should be able to comment on your abilities as a thoughtful, committed, respected, and inspirational young leader within your professional field and within your larger community.

I cannot find the Letters of Recommendation form on the online application.

Once you fill in your name and email address on your application form and click save, the "Letter of Recommendation" function will appear on the main menu of the online application form. This is to make sure that your references receive notifications with your name and contact information.

Have my letters of reference been received?

Please use the "Letter of Recommendation" function to manage and check the status of your recommendations. The recommendation system is applicant led, and therefore it is your responsibility to ensure that recommendations are completed before the application deadline.
